A cell in Murderers' Row of the Tombs on an ordinarily fair day could hardly be more dismal than was the stuffy little office of the Clerk of the Tombs Police Court yesterday morning when Financial Napoleon Ives was hauled up there on the charge of stealing a $100,000 draft from the Cincinnati. Hamilton and Dayton Railway Company, The room, which would be well filled with ten persons. was packed with nearly forty, there was a stifling heat from a 10° below zero fire in the grate and the atmosphere of the room was further invigorated by the steam from soaked netwollas and waterloomed clothing.

Judge Kilbreth sat like a martyr at the head of the long table. About him were crowded on one side Partner Doremus, Napoleon Ives and Ives's attorneys, ex-Congressman J. J. Adams, and Edgar M. Johnson of the firm of Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson. At his left were Assignee Cromwell, Julius Dexter, President of the C. H. and D. Railroad, and Lawyer Charles Cass, who represented President Dex-ter. On all sides, resting their note books on each other's shoulders and backs or upon the ter. On all sides, resting their note books on each other's shoulders and backs or upon the shoulder or back of any chance citizen were reporters. Warden Walsh of the Tombs prison was in there to get a look at Ives.

Ives beamed through his glasses, his pretty hair was done up nicely, and he wore the cheerful dry-goods-clerk 'what's the next article?" smirk, which is one of his chronte charms. President Dexter, smooth of face except as to his upper lip, wearing glasses which only now and then exposed a gleam from a pair of shrewd little black eyes, leaned against a desk and looked determined and implacable. Mr. Dexter was the first witness. Picking his way with many haits and false starts through all sorts of obstacles in the way of objections, he told of the contract his road had to buy stock of the Vandalia road.

Lawyer Johnson got up and said that his client (Ives) was perfectly willing to admit what he knew to be Isles. The defence was willing to admit that Ives, acting as trustee for the Unicinnati, Hamilton, and Dayton Railway, had paid President W. E. McKeen of the Vandalia line $889.500 on the purchase of that road, and had deposited it surplus of $100.000 in the form of a draft with the American Exchange Bank to the credited to the account of H. S. Ives & Co., and that the draft was collected by the American Exchange Bank from the Western National Bank, and the proceeds paid over; that the $100.000 draft was nover credited to the account of the C., H. & D. Railway Company, but was credited to the account of H. S. Ives & Co., and that at the time it was so credited the assets of H. S. Ives & Co., were a billion dollars or less short of its liabilities.

"Will you admit, said Lawyer Cass," that the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Railway Company never received the money for that draft?"

"In other words, you want us to admit," replied Lawyer Johnson." "that Ives stole the draft?"

"In other words, you want us to admit," replied Lawyer Johnson, "that Ives stole the draft. That we will assuredly not do."
When Mr. Dexter wanted to read statements taken from the flies of the Cheinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Railway, Ives's lawyers objected, and demanded that the flies themselves be produced.

taken from the flies of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Railway, Ives's lawyers objected, and demanded that the flies themselves be produced.

"We will produce the flies," said Lawyer Cass, "If you will produce flenry 8, Ives & Co.'s missing books."

Under cross-examination by Mr. Johnson Prosident Dexter acknowledged that he had been made a director of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Railroad through the influence of Henry 8, Ives & Co. was director of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Railroad through the influence of Henry 8, Ives & Co. was done most of the stock of the road. Mr. Dexter admitted in substance that he had threatened Ives with criminal prosecution if he interfered with his, Dexter's, enterprises. He denied that this criminal action was brought against Ives for the purpose of injuring his standing in a civil suit which has already been entered against Ives in Cincinnati.

"You brought this sait," said Mr. Johnson in the course of a few flery remarks, "for the purpose of injuring this defendant in the civil suit now pending. You ""

I did not, "said Mr. Dexter.

"I say you did," repeated Mr. Johnson, "and that is not all. You went, and two-thirds of the Board of Directors of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Railway Company went with Mr. Ives to Terre Haute, and there they consummated a contract with the Vandalia road which under the laws of the State and made an illegal contract. You evaded the laws of the State and made an illegal contract. You are as guilty as anylood;"

illegal contract. You evaded the laws of the State and made an illegal contract. You are as guilty as anybody."

Bookkoeper Ogden of H. S. Ives & Co.'s defunct bank swere that he received the $100,000 check and credited to the firm of H. S. Ives & Co. as trustees for the C. H. and D.; that he had no instructions from Mr. Ives or from anybody else so to credit, but did it of his own accord because it was right to do so, and not to credit it to the C. H. and D.

Ives himself took the stand and made a statement, smiling cheerfully all the time. He related the transaction with the Vandalia people in Terre Haute, and said that when he returned home he handed the check to his partner, Stayner, and Stayner put it in the bank. At the time of the denosit of the check in the bank he supposed the firm was solvent. The firm "would have been solvent at market prices." After the assignment Mr. Dexter shock hands with him cordially and congratulated him on having made it.

Mr. Johnson said it was the filmsiest case he ever saw. There was no evidence, he said, that the Cincinnat, Hamilton and Dayton Railway Company had lost a dime.

Judge Kilbreth reserved his decision.

MIKE BRENNAN'S VERY MUCH CLOSED.

A Sherif's Auctioneer Gets Into the Big Saloon and Sells it Out Clean, This notice appeared in the big glass window of Assemblyman Mike Brennan's big sa-loon at Grand and Sullivan streets yesterday afternoon: CLOSED. WILL BE OPENED ON OR ABOUT DEC. 21.

Inside a force of carpenters and workingmen were putting up improvised barroom fixtures were putting up improvised barroom fixtures made of boards, in place of the handsome cherry wood fixtures that were there in the morning. Tinkers were in the celiar soldering up the load pipes that bring the beer up stairs. In the morning Sheriff Grant took charge of the safoon, and at noon his auctioneer came around and sold out everything that could be picked up that Assemblyman Brennan was supposed to own. It was on a claim of the brewers, T. C. Lyman & Co., with whom Brennan had run up a bill of $2,000 for beer.

Brennan is in comfortable circumstances all the same. His wife is possessed of a house worth $12,000. He has an interest in a tavern in Albany, he says. His friends say that he has plenty to spend betting on trotting horses and things like that.

A Thief with a Reporter's Badge.

Lillie Gee, a waitress in the restaurant at 90 Sixth avenue, was accosted in Sixth avenue at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon by a man who offered her the protection of his umbrella. She declined it, and he snatched from her hands $2, her week's wages, and a from her hands $2, her week's wages, and a bundle, and ran through Houston street and jumped on the front platform of an avenue C car. Foliceman Kealy caught him after he had thrown away Miss Gee's money. At the Prince street station he said he was George Ferguson, a house painter, living, at 36 Clinton place. On his waistcoat was a badge reading: "Reporter of Melrose Journal, G. E. C." In his pockets were a memorandum book of receipts of subscriptions for the "Journal of Retail Drug Clerks," and $1.93 in money. He was slightly intoxicated.

Over Half a Million for Aqueduct Extras. The Aqueduct Commissioners have not yet made up their minds how much to allow for the extra claims of contractors. First the conthe extra claims of contractors. First the con-tractors wanted pay for "all excavations," then for "unavoidable excavations," and then for "all space filled with necessary masonry for the support of the aqueduct." In the original contract the chief engineer was made the judge of the amount to be allowed, but the Board of Commissioners will decide next Monday. It will take a good deal of ciphering to tell what the contractors will get, but it is about settled that they will get over half a million dollars.

Ridleys' Christmas.

The holiday dazzler of the east side is Bid-leys's great white palace on Grand street, between Orchard and Alien streets, decked as it now is with its Christmas wares. The hundred windows that bound that famous block are a joy and a wonder to the throngs of eager shoppers that pour into and sweep along Grand street at this Christmas tide. Behind those great plates of glass are seen arranged in artistic order and taste an epitomic of all the quaint, queer, and curious wares, the rich millimery treasures the feathers, flowers, ribbons, jewel ornaments, the exquisite hats and bonnets, the least line hostery, toled articles and accessories, the ploves, shoes, slippers, the Vienna and Faris novelites in loutier, class, silver, composition, bronze, and other metals, the heautiful Christmas cards and stationary, the state of the summers, toy books, toys and dolls, and last, but not less unders, toy books, toys and dolls, and last, but not less unders, toy books, toys and disk, and last, but not less unders, toy books, toys and the hallow, the fashionable and fastidious classes of New York and itself the workers, and that large and growing class, the well-to-do, independent, self-sustaining ancericans who spend the largest amount of money for the average run of holiday goods.

The collection of holiday goods proper at Ridleys this assoon sustains the well-carbed reputation of the house. The stock is apparently heavier, of finer quality, and, to use the leaguage of a member of the firm, "there is more money in § than ever before." of glass are seen arranged in artistic order and taste at

THE SENEY HOSPITAL OPEN. New Methodist Episcopal Institution Es-

The Methodist General Hospital, better known as the Seney Hospital, which with the surrounding grounds occupies the block bounded by Seventh and Eighth avenues and Sixth and Seventh streets, Brooklyn, was dedicated yesterday afternoon and the western pavillon was formally opened. It was in Feb wary, 1881, that Mr. George I. Seney, the banker, announced the munificent gift of $200,000 to found a Methodist Episcopal hospital, and the corner stone of the present grand inal plans had been so enlarged from time to time that when the work was brought to a sudden halt in 1885, in consequence of the financial disaster that befell him, Mr. Seney had expended $410,000. Appeals were made for the necessary funds to complete the structure, and $70,000 additional was raised, and in the spring necessary funds to complete the structure, and $70,000 additional was raised, and in the spring the work was resumed.

The main structure, with the pavilions, forms one of the most perfect institutions of the kind in the work. The building is of brick, triamed with Jersey freestone, and fronts on Sixth street. The grounds cover 3% acres, and extend 695 feet from north to south. While the hospital is to remain forever under Methodist Episcopal management, in accordance with the provisions of its founder, its doors are to be open to every class and condition of men or women. The services attending the dedication took place in the pavilion, which is ready for occupancy, and were witnessed by several hundred persons. The Rev. Dr. James M. Buckley, Treatident of the Board of Managers, presided. There were addresses by Frof. Horatio C. Wood of the University of Pennsylvania and Prof. Luther T. Townsend of Boston. Bishop John F. Hurst dedicated the building, and formally declared to the the theory of the seventy beds are now ready for occupancy. Already more than that number of applications have been received. The ultimate intention is to have nine buildings, and it will require $1,200,000 more to put the hospital in its contemplated finished shape. Beds have been endowed in perpetuity at $5,000 apiece by Nelson and Ed. R. Robinson, Wm. Hoyt, A. H. Cheesebrough, Wm. S. Johnston, and Thomas H. Luckley.

It is expected that another pavilion will be completed within a year.

CLAIMS ON THE PUBLIC PURSE.

We Can't have a New Floating Fire Engine -Mayor Hewitt Glad of Kind Words

The Board of Estimate vesterday allowed the Park Department for 1888 $1,015,650, which is $175,000 more than last year. For arranging small parks and general maintenance $394. 000 is allowed; for the goological department $30,000; museum, $30,000; music, $16,000. The Board allowed the Health Department for the contagious disease hospital on North Brothers Island, $60,000, an increase of $10,000 over the provisional estimates. Mr. Gallatin thanked the Board for the increase and complimented the Mayor on his appointments. Mayor Hewitt the Mayor on his appointments. Mayor Hewitt replied:

"I thank you. I am glad to get kind words. I hear mething but good of them."

The total amount allowed the department was $394.287, an increase of $41.779.

Chief Shay of the Fire Department fought hard for $100.000 for new houses and got $40.000 for new buildings in West Eighty-third street and 125th street. The appropriation of $75.000 for a new floating engine was lost by the adverse vote of President Coleman. Chief Shay said excitedly: "If a fire breaks out along the water front and there is a good breeze blowing, it will sweep this town.

Mayor Hewitt remarked sententiously, "And that ends the Fire Department." The total amount allowed the Fire Department was $1.990.492, an excess over the estimates for 1887 of $185.729.

The Department of Taxes and Assessments

$1,990,492, an excess over the estimates for 1887 of $185,729.

The Department of Taxes and Assessments was allowed $112,600, an increase of $2,300. The Mayor pocularly asked Mr. Coleman whether the increase was for the new Assessor, and remarked that perhaps the appointment would not have been made if the Tax Commissioners had seen a letter which he, the Mayor, received in relation to him. Mr. Coleman made no reply.

facturing Pives out of Twee Cashier Sherer of the Sub-Treasury has discovered in the last three weeks six $2 silver certificates which have been raised to $5 bunce silver certificates. The work is so clumsy that the Sub-Treasury officials could not understand how a sane man could have been deceived. In the left-hand face of a good $2 silver certificate is a vignette of the handsome face of Gen. Hancock. and the figure 2 is in the upper right-hand corner. In the raised certificates the 2 has been erased clumsily by saids, and the big 2s on the back of the bills have also been taken out by acids and 5s, that look as if they had been put in with a stamp, are substituted. The other checky peculiarity of the swindle is that Gen. Hancock's face on the 2s has been daubed with cheap ink to put a beard on it. This was done because the good 5s have a vignette of Gen. Grant.

It was a Great Christening. The trial of Daniel Mullen for manslaughter in the first degree for the killing of Michael Mullen at the sanguinary christening party in June last was continued in the Court of Sessions in Brooklyn yesterday. Troops of witnesses representing two opposing factions in the Mullen family testified to the events of the the Mullen family testified to the events of the christening, but differed widely as to the circumstances of the fatal stabbing, and the part taken in it by the accused. On one point, however, all the witnesses were in agreement, and that was that there was no lack of hospitality at the christening. The father of the infant testified that he had five kegs of beer, 2% gallons of whiskey, and two boxes of light beverages on hand when the party came home from the church at 11% o'clock in the forencon, and that when the party broke up in turmoli toward midnight very little of the stock remained. The prisoner testified in his own behalf, and denied that he used a knile during the fight. The trial will be concluded to-day.

Vanderbilts will Inhabit States Island. Great alterations and improvements are in progress at the old Vanderbilt homestead at New Dorp. Staten Island. Some 200 laborers are engaged in laying out the grounds. Roads are engaged in laying out the grounds. Roads are being cut and terraces constructed, and a beautiful artificial lake is being made. The old building, which was formerly occupied by the late Commodore and W. H. Vanderbilt, is to be removed from its present position, near the road, to the centre of tile farm. The improvements are being made for the Vanderbilt family, who will occupy the house during some of the summer months.

MRS. BACHMAN SWOONS IN COURT. They Wouldn't Let her Father Tell the Conrad W. Bachman's suit against his wife Mary Ann for absolute divorce was brought to trial yesterday before Judge Ingra-ham and a jury in the Supreme Court. Bachman is a retired saloon keeper. His wife is an American, and was a Miss Powers.

The plaintiff alleged that his wife had been intimate with Richard Toner, the rat catcher intimate with Richard Toner, the rat catcher and dog fancier, who is sometimes known as "Poverty Dick" and "Dick the Rat." She denied this emphatically. She testified that she was fond of dogs, and bred them. She now has thirteen. It was through her liking for dogs that she met Dick, and all the visits that he paid to her house were professional. She often bought, sold, and traded with him.

Mrs. Bachman's father, Russell Henry Powers, testified for his daughter. On cross-examination he was asked if he had not brought suit against the defendant for crooked money transactions. ination he was assed it he had not been suit against the defendant for crooked money transactions.

"I object," said Mrs. Bachman's lawyer. Before the witness had an opportunity to answer, the defendant arose and cried excitedly:

"Oh! Father, why can't you tell the truth?
Why isn't mother here?"

Then she fell to the floor in a swoon, and was carried from the court room out into the rotunds, where the air soon revived her.

Counsel will sum up to-day.

The Silent Burgiar Confesses His Cult. John Doe, the silent boy burglar, who since his arrest on Nov. 30 could not be induced to say whether or not he was guilty of breaking into the house of Dora Hermann, 494 Broome street, spoke yesterday. A lawyer who was assigned to defend him persuaded him to open his mouth sufficiently to say that he was guilty of petit isrceny. Recorder Smyth sentenced him to nine months in the penitentiary.

Lawyer James Flemming of Jersey City resterday, on behalf of the Citizens' Association of that city, obtained an order from Judge Knapp restraining the Board of Public Works from advertising for proposals to supply the city with water. The order is returnable on Monday.
